ABSTRACT

This is a report of a project begun in May, 1970 and completed in January, 1971 to enable veterans released from military service to seek a college career, to train staff members to work with veteran students on the campuses, to investigate establishment of a Testing and Advisement Center for veteran students of the Los Angeles Community Colleges, to acquaint college staff members and veterans' service representatives with each other, and to provide a basis for coordination of administration of veteran student affairs on the eight campuses of the Los Angeles Community College District. The project temporarily satisfied a need for coordination of the administration of veteran student's educational benefits. A counselor's Handbook for Veterans' Advisement was presented at staff training program. A roster of participants is included, as well as a sample participant evaluation form and selected statements on strengths and weaknesses of training program made by participants. (Author/NR)

DIRECTOR'S EVALUATION REPORT

January 25, 1971

I. Basic Information

- A. Los Angeles City College, 855 North Vermont Avenue, Los Angeles, California, 90029.
- B. Vietnam Veterans' College Recruitment and Staff Training Project.
- C. Director - Dr. Robert McHargue, Los Angeles City College - (213) 663-9141, Extension 369.
Groups primarily responsible for the training program - The Veterans' Committee of the Board of Trustees, Los Angeles Community Colleges; the Office of Governmental Programs, Division of Instruction, Los Angeles Community Colleges; and the staff of the subject project.
- D. Beginning date for the Project - May 12, 1970.
Ending date for the Project - January 30, 1971.

II. Program Focus - The main objectives of the Project

- A. To reach veterans (and servicemen who are about to become veterans) to inform them about their educational benefits under the revised and expanded G. I. Bill (PL 91-219). To further inform them that the community colleges of Los Angeles, and colleges in adjacent districts, provide a wide scope of educational offerings.
- B. To train staff members who deal face-to-face with veteran-students on the campuses. To provide refresher training for staff members currently assigned responsibilities in veterans' advisement and to provide new training for staff members (or potential staff members) who may have such responsibilities in the near future.
- C. To investigate the advisability of establishing a Testing and Advisement Center for veteran-students of the Los Angeles Community Colleges.
- D. To acquaint college staff members and representatives of the veterans' service organizations in this area with each other so proper referrals may be made.
- E. To provide a basis for coordination of the administration of veteran-student affairs on the eight campuses of the Los Angeles Community College District.

III. Program Operation

- A. To meet the objective outlined in II, A above, the Project Director commissioned the Cinema Section of the Broadcasting Department at Los Angeles City College to produce a color-sound 16 mm. motion picture film of approximately 30 minutes running time, designed to be made available in Southern California to Project Transition Officers and officers in charge of Separation Centers, to Veterans' Hospitals, to Veterans' Counseling Departments, and to Veterans' Community Service Centers.

The film crew at Los Angeles City College is currently shooting the last of its sequence of outdoor shots on several of our campuses. These outdoor shots have been delayed by inclement weather. The projected completion date of the film, as far as production-expense is concerned, is January 15, 1971; the projected release date is February 15, 1971.

The film will be released after our current Project (Grant #MH 45-4971) has terminated. If our follow-up proposal (see III, C below) is approved, we will be able to arrange for and supervise the distribution of the prints of the film under the operations of that project. If the follow-up proposal is not approved, the Los Angeles Community College District will be faced with the necessity of making other arrangements for distribution of the film.

The Project Director, Assistant Director, the Chairman of the Veterans' Committee of the Board of Trustees, and college-staff members directly responsible for veterans' advisement on our eight campuses have reviewed "rushes" of the film at various points in its production. It promises to be a worthwhile and eminently useful device for the achievement of our objective--recruitment of veterans into college programs appropriate to their educational needs and abilities.

The film and excerpts from the film, give promise of being useful with MAC (our Mobile Advisement Center), a van which moves into disadvantaged neighborhoods of Los Angeles with a crew of counselors and student-advisors to give educational counseling services to those who need such service but have failed to seek help from the schools and colleges.

B. The Staff-Training Program (Please see Exhibit #1 in the Appendix)

1. Participants. The number of participants was slightly fewer than half as many as we had budgeted for. Those who attended the program evinced an interest and involvement that exceeded our expectations. The roster of participants was forwarded to Dr. Paul H. Carnell, Asst. Director, Division of College Support, on November 23, 1970. A copy of that roster is Exhibit #2 in the Appendix to this report. (During the period when we were receiving applications, it appeared that regulations of our governing board would prevent our paying stipends to the participants. It turned out that this interpretation of the regulations did not prevail. However, it probably discouraged some who might have signed up primarily because there was a stipend. As a consequence of this situation those who did enroll were very highly motivated and eager to get the information we were able to impart.)

a. Criteria Used in Selection of Participants.

	Required	Preferred	Not Used
Standard Test Scores			X
Academic Attainment			X
Current Position		X
Age			X
Recommendations		X
Degrees			X
Interview			X
Geographic Limitations	X
Actual or Potential Responsibilities for Serving Veteran- Students on Campus	X

We required only that our enrollees be actually (or potentially) engaged in veteran-student advisement (or processing) on a college campus and that the colleges where they served be in, or within 50 miles of, the Los Angeles Community College District.

We preferred to enroll those who were serving currently as veterans' advisors or veterans' clerks. We accepted those who aspired to such positions and seemed likely to succeed in those aspirations.

These selection criteria worked well for us, and we would not modify them in selecting participants for a training program with the same or similar objectives.

b. Faculty-Participant Ratio
1 to 16

2. Staff. The most effective of our lecturers and consultants were those who came to us from the Regional Offices of the Veterans' Administration--particularly those from the Adjudication Division.

~~The most effective were the veteran-students from one or another of our eight campuses, who served as lecturers or as panelists. These young men gave us the grass-roots approach to the matters under consideration.~~

c. Activities

The objective of giving refresher and new training to those currently employed in veteran-student advisement (and processing), and new training to those who expect to be so employed, was realized. Please refer to Exhibit #3 in the Appendix. Item #12 in that summary of Participants' Evaluations shows that 24 of 28 participants found the program very useful, 4 of 28 found it fairly useful, none found it less than fairly useful.

1. No new techniques were used, but all sessions were tape recorded. The tapes are available for participants who missed a session and for those who would like to reinforce the information he received at any particular session.
2. The beginning and ending dates were effective insofar as they were scheduled to coincide with the time when veterans' staff personnel could be released from their normal duties with the least disruption of college business. The length of the program was too great by about two days, but if we had scheduled the program for fewer than five full days, our participants would not have been eligible for their stipends. We recommend more flexibility in granting stipends for training periods of fewer than five full days.
3. For conclusions about the effectiveness of staff and participant time, please refer to Exhibit #3, Item 11, which shows that seven participants felt this was outstanding; sixteen, very good; four, good; and one, less than good.

A number of allied innovative programs for college recruitment of veterans (particularly veterans from disadvantaged groups) were explained to the participants. Most noteworthy were: (1) VITAL on the Los Angeles City College Campus (VITAL stands for Volunteers in Tutoring and Learning). (2) The East Los Angeles Service Center, an arm of the Department of Military and Veterans' Affairs, County of Los Angeles. This service center serves the community of East Los Angeles where Mexican-American citizens abound.

4. As a follow up to the training program, Mr. Clarence Morris, Assistant Director of the Project, arranged a field trip for the participants. They visited the Veterans' Administration Regional Offices in Los Angeles. There they again met the top-level people in the various divisions and "walked thru" the stations presented on the flow chart which is shown as Exhibit #4 of the Appendix. In walking thru those stations, our college people met and talked with the people at the Veterans' Administration who actually do the processing of veteran-students' papers. The participants were eloquent in stating that this served to modify their attitudes toward the Veterans' Administration since they were able to understand, through first-hand observation, some of the problems the V. A. has to cope with.

Repeatedly, during the training program, participants expressed their appreciation of the value of getting together to exchange views on procedures or policy relating to the handling of veteran-students' educational or enrollment problems on campus. Too often, they felt that they were having to "go it alone." They repeatedly expressed the fact that they feel a need for coordination, on a district-wide basis, of matters relating to veteran-students.

D. The Proposal relating to the Testing and Advisement Centers

As outlined in Paragraph 2, above, one of the major thrusts of this project was to investigate the advisability of preparing for the establishment of a testing and advisement service for veteran-students of the Los Angeles Community Colleges.

During the summer months of 1970, the Director and the Assistant Director of the Project, usually together, but occasionally working separately, visited all eight colleges in the Los Angeles Community College District and visited 16 community colleges in adjacent or nearby districts in Southern California. (Exhibit #5 of the Appendix shows the names and addresses of the community colleges which were visited).

The deans, veterans' advisors, and veterans' clerks who were interviewed at the 24 community colleges were asked, "What problems do you meet in processing veteran-students who seek to attend your college under the provisions of the G. I. Bill?"

Without exception the respondents at the colleges identified "getting that first educational-benefits check into the hands of the veteran-student before he has to drop out and take an extra job so he can pay the rent" as their most pervasive problem.

With very few exceptions, the problem identified as the second most pervasive was: "getting adequate counseling for veterans who need testing and advisement in excess of what the colleges are able to provide. The college authorities indicated that veteran-students who are referred to the Veterans' Administration Regional Offices for counseling must wait two and one-half to three months before their cases reach a counselor. By then the veteran has in most cases already resolved his educational-planning without any additional professional counseling. His solutions may not be advantageous to himself or to society-at-large.

As a consequence of this investigation, the Los Angeles Community Colleges have proposed that during the Spring 1971 semester a Veterans' Testing and Advisement Staff-Training Project be funded under Part E of the Educational Professions Development Act, PL 90-35. A copy of the Abstract of that proposal is included in the Appendix of this report as Exhibit #6.

E. Evaluation

At the last session of our staff-training program, the participants were asked to complete the Participant Evaluation Forms. A tally of the responses that lent themselves to such treatment, was made. The summary of the tallies is shown as Exhibit #3 in the Appendix of this report.

In agreement with the guidelines for the preparation of the Director's Evaluation Report, all of the Participant Evaluation Forms which were completed are included as Exhibit #8 in the Appendix.*

*The individual participants' evaluation sheets are too numerous to be included in any but the original copy of this report which is forwarded to the Office of Education, Washington, D.C. Recipients of other copies are referred to Exhibits #3 and 7 in the Appendix which are summaries of the individual evaluations.

IV. Consideration of our project as a whole leads to these conclusions:

- A. The project temporarily has satisfied a need in the Community Colleges of Los Angeles for coordination of the administration of veteran-students' educational benefits. When the project ends, the District will be faced with providing continued coordination at the district level or allowing the administration of veteran-students' affairs to remain as is.
- B. The Veterans' Administration personnel with whom we work, and most of those who directly administer veteran-student affairs on the campuses, would prefer to work through a coordinator who could maintain liaison between the V.A. and the colleges, and could bring about a much needed measure of uniformity in the handling of veteran-students.
- C. One of the steps toward uniformity was the presentation at our staff-training program of a counselors' Handbook for Veterans' Advisement. (Please see Exhibit #9 in the Appendix.)

ABSTRACT OF PROGRAM

It is expected that the Indo-China Theatre of military operations will be closed in the foreseeable future; that the veterans who are then released from military service will seek a college career in response to the Outreach Program of the Veterans Administration and in response to the expanded and liberalized provisions of the educational benefits under PL 91-219.

Los Angeles City College, on behalf of the eight community colleges in the Los Angeles Community College District (which serves 232 square miles, including metropolitan Los Angeles and seven adjacent communities), proposes:

1. A recruitment program to attract and select qualified counselors, psychometrists, and psychologists.
2. A series of workshop training conferences designed to update and give focus to the preparation of these professionals.
3. The organization of a system of testing and advisement centers to serve veterans in the Los Angeles Community College District.

The full-time Director and a half-time assistant director will actively recruit counselors, psychometrists, and psychologists as participants and will organize at least four day-long workshop conferences designed to prepare the participants to staff any one of the three testing and advisement centers which will be organized. The centers will serve distinctive geographical areas of greater Los Angeles. Each of the three areas encompasses disadvantaged neighborhoods wherein minority-group citizens abound.

Selected Statements From Open-End Responses On Participant Evaluations.

IDENTIFY SPECIFIC CHANGES YOU WOULD LIKE TO SEE IF THE PROGRAM WERE TO CONTINUE.

- A. More time with the Veterans' Administration.
- B. Better administrative participation--assistant deans and/or advisors who should be concerned.
- C. The use of data processing equipment at the college level should have been demonstrated.
- D. Include a field trip to the Veterans' Administration Regional Offices. (This was done as a post-session activity.)
- E. Include dependents of deceased or disabled veterans on one of the panels.
- F. I recommend another 3 day program to identify in writing the basic problems of community colleges in veterans' affairs and transmission of these to the Veterans Administration.
- G. The Veterans' Administration should have been represented daily instead of every-other-day.

DISCUSS YOUR PERCEPTIONS OF THE MAJOR STRENGTHS AND WEAKNESSES OF THE TRAINING PROGRAM.

STRENGTHS

- A. Excellent information from the Veterans' Administration and also from the veterans who participated.
- B. The program was well organized and gave the various colleges time to exchange views and ideas.
- C. Speakers were excellent; question and answer periods most helpful.
- D. The overall program was excellent.
- E. The physical arrangements were good.
- F. The training directors were sincere and devoted.
- G. The program was comprehensive in scope; provided qualified consultants and opportunity for interaction with veteran students.
- H. Actually, I gained a more over-all picture of the work I'm doing for veteran-students.
- I. There was good rapport between the audience and the speakers.

WEAKNESSES

- A. Some panels did not allow adequate time for discussion.
- B. Some lecturers spoke too rapidly for adequate note-taking.
- C. The program was too long.
- D. The Institute Director should have written down some proposals and submitted them to the V. A. with our backing.
- E. Transportation should have been provided for the field trip.
- F. Reviews of veteran-student panelists were accurate but repetitious.

- G. No follow-up program could be assured.
- H. No expert community college veterans' affairs officials available throughout.
- I. Behavioral objectives not identified or evaluated.

IF THIS PROGRAM ENHANCED YOUR CAREER DEVELOPMENT SUFFICIENTLY TO JUSTIFY THE TIME YOU DEVOTED TO IT, EXPLAIN HOW.

- A. My understanding of the Veterans' Administration's problems (and the Colleges' problems in veterans' affairs) is changed since this program. I now realize that every school has essentially the same problems.
- B. The program gave me ideas on how to communicate with veteran-students to allow them to know their responsibilities as well as their benefits.
- C. This program has been very helpful to me in learning about the various services available to veterans through community agencies.
- D. This program has given me advantages because I'm from a small college and as yet we have not experienced some of the problems the larger colleges have had. When these problems do arise, I'll have something to refer to.
- E. The program will allow me to train other clerks and counselors to give accurate information to veteran-student.
- F. This was the first formal training I have received although I've been doing veterans work since '67. I wish I had had the training sooner.
- G. I'm sure our colleges' veterans will have a better organized and smoother operation from now on.
- H. As yet I'm not directly involved with veteran-students. I feel this program gave me an insight into the help I'll be able to offer.
- I. As a para-professional, I feel this program has enabled me to extend my service as a student counselor.
